

Carrie Christiansen

Carrie Christiansen is a birthright Quaker (not a practicing one), raised in a family with a focus on humanitarian activism. Many traditions and teachers have influenced her in this life. Her consciously committed Spiritual journey began in the early 90s, when through the motivation of a “Dark Night of the Soul” she was guided to study in earnest the ACIM volume her mother had given her 2 years earlier... That first time through The Workbook facilitated intense awakening experience, shredding her prior concept of “reality”, and she has continued as a student and facilitator since.

Horses (animals and nature in general) have been a lifelong interest and vocation, and much inspiration has come to her via those interactions. “HorsePath – Healing horses, healing people” is a non profit organization that brings humans and horses together for healing interaction that she helped found and served on the board of for 10+ years. She also does healing work for humans and animals in the Shamanic tradition.

Carrie has been a member of The Center for Conscious Living in NJ since '04, and as an Associate Minister (ordained at One Spirit Interfaith Seminary) and Religious Science Practitioner there she teaches and designs curriculum for spiritual classes, and serves in various volunteer capacities. Prison Ministry is another longtime call she started actively pursuing in the fall of '14. In the summer of '13 at the inception of Awakening Together she was led to It and the teachings of Regina Dawn Akers. The impact was powerful and she was inspired to become a member. When the AT Ministerial Program was announced it spoke to her and she is scheduled for ordination in Feb. of '16. She also serves as an AT Radio admin and teacher.
